EU Scrutiny 2012

Dutch House of Representatives: List of prioritized proposals from the European Commission's 2012 Work Programme

Every year the Dutch House of Representatives (Tweede Kamer) closely examines and discusses the European Commission's Work Programme, which lists the legislative and strategic proposals to be published in the year to come. Subsequently, the House of Representatives draws up a list of Commission proposals it wants to pay special attention to.

All standing committees select the proposals related to their policy area, which they would like to see prioritized. The final list of the 2012 prioritized proposals was discussed by the standing committee on European Affairs and approved in a plenary sitting of the House on 6 February 2012.

The prioritized proposals will be scrutinized by the House of Representatives upon publication by the European Commission. This list does not prevent other proposals from being added and scrutinized in the course of the year.

Subsidiarity test

Several of the proposals will be checked against the principle of subsidiarity; these have been marked with an X in the column headed 'subsidiarity check'.

Parliamentary scrutiny reserve

If the House of Representatives considers a European legislative proposal to be of such importance that it wants to be accurately informed and updated of all steps taken by the government in the negotiation process, it can enter a so-called parliamentary reserve.

The House then asks the government not to take any irreversible decisions in the Brussels negotiations, until after a debate on the issue has taken place between the minister and the standing committee concerned. In addition, the government will be required to send a political analysis on the EU-proposal to the Dutch Parliament within three weeks after publication by the European Commission.

The proposals which will be subject to a parliamentary reserve by the House of Representatives have been marked with an X in the last column. New proposals can become subject to a subsidiarity check and/or a parliamentary reserve during the year.
