I. Delivery of the Decision on the Appeal by Mr. M [redacted] on his Pre-trial Detention on 5 December 2016

50. The decision on the appeal by Mr. M [redacted] was delivered on 5th December 2016 at Nyarugenge Intermediate Court on 5th December 2016. The hearing was held before Judge [redacted]. The Accused was present in Court and was assisted by Counsel [redacted]. Prosecution Counsel was also present.

51. The Court summarized the grounds contained in Mr. M [redacted] appeal as follows:

- i. That the Primary Court judge used facts not discussed during hearing to render his decision and;
- ii. That the conditions used to order his pretrial detention were not serious enough to warrant a pretrial detention.

52. The Court indicated that having read the decision of the Primary Court, it had noted that the Primary Court had based its decision, on the facts of the case and on the request made by Prosecution. The Prosecution had submitted that it needed time to complete the investigation and the conditions underlined in article 98 of CCP which provides that;

“A suspect may be subject to provisional detention if there are serious grounds for suspecting that he/she has committed an offence even if the alleged offense is punishable with imprisonment of less than two (2) years but more than three (3) months, if there is reason to believe that he/she may evade justice and his/her identity is unknown or doubtful”.

53. The Court reiterated the arguments made by the Accused and the Prosecution in the appeal hearing.
54. The Court upheld the decision of the Primary Court and indicated that the Accused had not convinced the Court that the decision of the Primary Court needed to be reversed.

J. Hearing of the Extension on the Pre-trial Detention Order at Nyarugunga Primary Court on 22 December 2016

55. The hearing on the extension of the Pre-trial detention order was heard at Nyarugunga Primary Court on 22 December 2016. The case was heard before Justice [redacted] [redacted] Mr. [redacted] represented the Prosecution. Mr. M [redacted] and his Counsel, Mr. [redacted] were also present.
56. At the invitation of the Court, Mr. M [redacted] informed the Court that the documents at the Intermediate Court detailing his identity were erroneous because new elements were added to his identity which included, a phone number and email that he did not recognize. The Presiding Judge inquired as to whether the identity in the Primary Court documents were correct.
57. In his response, Mr. M [redacted] submitted that they were correct, the Court directed the Prosecution to have the identity of Mr. M [redacted] corrected in the affected documents.
58. At the invitation of the Court, the Prosecution submitted that their request at that hearing was for the pretrial order for Mr. M [redacted] be extended for 30 days pursuant to article 104 of CPC which provides that;

“The provisional detention order against a suspect shall be valid for one (1) month including the date on which it is rendered. After the expiry date, it may be renewed for one (1) month on a continuing basis.”
59. The Prosecution submitted further that they needed more time to finalize their investigations and some of the witnesses had changed location. Furthermore, the Accused was alleged to have committed serious crimes, the Prosecution feared that if he was released before trial he might evade justice.

60. At the invitation of the Court, the Prosecutor urged the Court to consider that the Prosecution required sufficient time to conduct investigations because all the charges had to be proven before Court.
61. At the invitation of the Court Mr. M [] submitted that he did not understand the process by which the Prosecution was conducting its work, because it was as if the Prosecution was prosecuting a case to halt genocide, instead of prosecuting an individual who was suspected of committing genocide. In Mr. M [] view, by the time the Prosecution issued an international arrest warrant against him, they ought to have finalized their investigations. Mr. M [] did not understand why the Prosecution was asking for more time to conduct investigations that they ought to have finished.
62. Mr. M [] submitted further that the most important witnesses the Prosecution was relying on, were witnesses who had been sentenced to life imprisonment and the CCP provided that such people lose their civil rights including testifying in Court. He concluded by saying the Prosecution didn't have any evidence.
63. At the invitation of the Court, the Defence Counsel submitted that the Court should apply article 89 of CCP which provides that;
- “A suspect shall normally remain free during investigation. However, the suspect may be held in provisional detention if the conditions provided for under Articles 96 and 97 of this Law are met”.
64. He urged the Court to order provisional release for his client, because even if Mr. M [] was accused of serious crimes, article 105 of CCP provides that;
- “For any offence, a suspect or his/her legal counsel may, depending on the stage of the proceedings, ask the Prosecutor handling the case or the judge to grant him/her provisional release”.
65. At the invitation of the Court, Mr. M [] requested the Court to interpret the law correctly noting that witnesses facing life imprisonment should not be allowed to present evidence in Court.
