Introduction

You cannot skip questions. If there are questions that you do not feel comfortable responding to, please tick the "no opinion / not applicable" options. You can also pause at any time and continue later. Once you have submitted your answers, you will be able to download a copy of your completed questionnaire and to upload a written contribution.

Note that, whatever option chosen, your answers may be subject to a request for public access to documents under Regulation EC 1049/2001

*My

contribution

- can be published with my personal information (I consent to the publication of all information in my contribution in whole or in part including my name or my organisation's name, and I declare that nothing within my response is unlawful or would infringe the rights of any third party in a manner that would prevent publication.)
- can be published provided that I remain anonymous (I consent to the publication of any information in my contribution in whole or in part (which may include quotes or opinions I express) provided that it is done anonymously. I declare that nothing within my response is unlawful or would infringe the rights of any third party in a manner that would prevent the publication.)

About you:

* The questions in this section aim at collecting general information about the identity of the respondent.

1. You are welcome to answer the questionnaire in any of the 24 official languages (http://ec.europa.eu/dgs/translation/translating/officiallanguages/index_en.htm) of the EU. The analysis of answers will be done on the basis of machine translations into English. Please let us know in which language you are replying:

- A university / higher education centre is less than 50 km away
- Neither of the above
- Don't know

*11. Which (if any) of these statements apply to you?

- I / my organisation has significant knowledge of smart specialisation and other research and innovation policy approaches;
- I / my organisation has a significant role in the implementation of innovation and business development funding;
- I / my organisation was involved in the development of the smart specialisation strategy of my country / region
- The field of activity of me / my organisation falls into one or more of the smart specialisation priorities of my country / region
- None of the above
- Don't know

Specific questions

1. A Smart Specialisation Strategy is a national or regional research and innovation strategy which sets priorities. These priorities aim to build competitive advantage by developing and matching in the country or region research and innovation strengths with business needs.

Smart specialisation priorities aim to seize emerging opportunities and market developments. Smart Specialisation Strategies aim to avoid duplication and fragmentation of efforts across the EU that in the past often hampered the attaining of critical mass for research and innovation projects in the EU.

The EU's cohesion and research and innovation policies aim to create framework conditions that favour research and innovation and that allow bringing ideas to market. Support to research and innovation takes various forms. It is provided by public as well as private bodies on regional, national and EU level. The aim of asking to develop and implement smart specialisation strategies over the last 3 years was to improve the type, quantity and quality of research and innovation support at national and regional levels.

Please indicate, if you answer question 2a) and 2 b) with focus on

- your region
- your country
- both, region + country

* 3.a) Did smart specialisation have an impact on research and innovation support to your work in the past 3 years ?

- Yes
- No

3.b) How has smart

specialisation improved your use of research and innovation infrastructure or services in the past 3 years? (1=declined; 2=no change, 3=increased):

Innovation - In the sense of successfully bringing a new or significantly improved goods / services to the market - rarely happens in isolation. In general, innovation "eco-systems" make innovation happen in a region / country. Such innovation eco-systems work thanks to the combination of public support and private initiative and depend crucially on the interaction and openness to

- Design of work programmes and support conditions of EU level funding programmes
- Strategic use of SME intermediaries, such as cluster organisations, in order to reach out businesses, notably SMEs
- Interaction with business, researchers, civil society and public administration
- Technological or sectorial choices in terms of research and innovation support
- Modification of the regulatory and administrative framework conditions for research and innovation (e.g. rules on health, safety and environmental requirements of new products or production methods)
- Impact assessments for new legislation that can influence research and innovation
- Analysis of demand for innovative solutions (including public procurement needs)
- Development of partnerships with innovators and firms in other countries / regions
- Development of strategic interregional cooperation
- Creation of experimental cross-border legislation that facilitates cross-border innovative projects between regions
- Monitoring of the progress of the smart specialisation strategy implementation
- Monitoring of the implementation of the relevant European Structural and Investment Fund programmes
- Rules or development of university-industry cooperation
- Rules on career development of academics (e.g. secondment to private sector)
- Exchange/learning from lessons/ good practices of other Member States / regions
- Identification and development of relevant skills
- Design and development of pilot lines for upscaling

Could you describe a very good research and/or Innovation specific project that was implemented in the course of the past 3 years in your country / region, was linked to a smart specialisation strategy, and that could inspire others to launch similar projects?

- Yes
- No

7. The EU provides around 10% of all the public research and innovation support, including smart specialisation strategies in the European Union member states. This works either via directly managed funds where you apply directly to the Commission (e.g. Horizon 2020, COSME, Joint Undertakings, etc.) or the European Investment Fund or via shared managed funds (e.g. European Regional Development Fund, European Social Fund) where the definition of the selection conditions and the selection of the projects is done by national or regional bodies or intermediaries.
